Winter's Greeting Milder.

The winters in America have changed wonderfully since I was a boy," said Edward O'Neill, the insurance man, "and while Pittsburgers complain with greater cause of the changeable, now warm, now cold weather they get in the winter months, they are not alone in the enjoyment of the discomforts of a treacherous, shifting climate. When I was a boy and lived on the banks of the Hudson, in New York state, the river used to freeze solid by Thanksgiving, and from then till late in March we had all the sleighing we wanted; the snow accumulated till nothing on wheels was to be thought of as a vehicle for months together. I remember going to school in weather that was simply Arctic, with the thermometer at 20 degrees below zero. "They have no such long periods of very cold weather there now; there are cold snaps, and they still have some sleighing and skating, but the kind of winter I remember as the normal one of my school days the Hudson river valley knows no more. Pittsburgers enjoyed such winters twenty years ago too. The theory that the destruction of forests and the clearing and cultivating of the land has had this effect upon the climate may explain the mild, uncertain winters in some sections, but it will hardly hold good in regard to the Hudson valley, which is still dominated by the forest clad sides of the Catskills."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Latest Cut in Beards.

The pointed beard, which has for so long a time held popular favor, is no longer the thing of fashion that it was. "The pointed beard," says M. Henri Pongol, an authority, "has certain advantages over all others, and that is the reason why it has so long been popular. It is a style of beard that was invented by King Henry III, of France. It requires less trimming and care than any other, and therefore in this busy country it has been widely adopted. But it must go.

The new beard resembles the one now about to be discarded in some respects. It is like a pointed beard with the point cut off. It is very thin and closely cut on the cheeks. It is a peculiar fact that the adoption of this style after discarding the other is but a repetition of history. After Henry III had made the pointed beard so fashionable the Duke de Guise introduced the present beard. The Duke de Guise, as you will remember, was the instigator of the Huguenot massacre on St. Bartholomew's Day. He lived in the sixteenth century and was assassinated in his forty-third year.—National Barber.

Fibrelia.

It is reported that the proposed use of fibrelia, as it is termed—made from common flax straw—as a substitute for cotton, is receiving serious consideration. By the process of production the material referred to is reduced to a short staple, very closely resembling cotton or wool, and it is claimed, well adapted for use with either in the manufacture of goods by the machinery now in use, and when so used is said to add materially to the value of the product. It is the opinion of experts who have investigated the matter that woolen and cotton manufacturers are among those to be especially advantaged by the article, it being adapted readily to their use. The fibrous manufacturers are confined to two processes, differing entirely in that one uses short staples, or cotton, and wool, while the other utilizes long staples, like flax, hemp, silk and jute. Fibrelia, in a word, is flax converted from a long staple to a short one, adapted for use on the present cotton and wool machinery.—Providence Journal.

Fires in English Mansions.

The importance of providing private appliances for the extinction of fires in mansions is gradually becoming recognized by country gentlemen, for although the nearest town may be equipped with powerful engines, the time occupied in sending for these and in their returning is usually so considerable as to render their aid almost useless. Lord Brassey has recently been anxious for the safety of his house at Battle, near Hastings, and after seeking advice from an experienced engineer he has had a reservoir constructed under his lawn holding over 60,000 gallons of water, whence a powerful steam fire engine will draw water and throw it in enormous volumes over the mansion. A private fire brigade is also in course of formation, composed of the gardeners and other workmen on the estate.—London Tit-Bits.

White Poplars as Lightning Rods.

M. Ooveroff, a Moscow scientist, has discovered that when lightning strikes in a forest the white poplar (populus alba) is the first to attract it. He came to the conclusion that this tree can be used as a natural lightning rod, and he submitted a memorial to the minister of the interior advocating that the planting of a white poplar before every house in a village be made obligatory upon the peasants to prevent fire by lightning.—New York Sun.

A Dog's Wardrobe.

Mrs. Patti sat behind her diamonds in the opening of a horseshoe of newspaper men in her parlor at the hotel. A wee dog, soft and silken, and the color of rich cream, was in her lap. A red blanket covered his narrow back and sides. His name is Prince Ricci. He is of a Mexican breed, known in dogdom as Chihuahuas, and has an aristocratic air. After Mrs. Patti had kissed the wee dog a number of times and had wiped the corners of its bright little eyes with a lace handkerchief, she called her maid and had Prince Ricci's trunk brought in.

"Now, these are his blankets," said the prima donna with evident delight, as she unpacked a number of artistically made and handsomely finished little squares of rich fabrics. There were several colors in the wardrobe. "Don't they look comfortable?" asked Patti. A dozen heads nodded, and such expressions were made as "yes, very," "perfectly exquisite," "charmingly artistic."

Delving deeper in the trunk Prince Ricci's toilet was taken out. The case was handsome. It had a fancy snap and was lined in rich satin.

"This," said the queen of song, taking a small carved brush from the case, "is Prince Ricci's too. You cannot keep the dear little fellow's coat in proper condition without careful attention."

The brush was passed around the horseshoe and returned to the case. Prince Ricci buried his nose in Patti's rich gown as her jeweled fingers took a very small brush from the case. The bristles did not bristle, they were so soft. "This is for Prince Ricci's teeth. They are brushed regularly every day. It would be quite impossible for him to have good health were they neglected."—New York Advertiser.

Oranges in London.

For some time the collection of anthropoid apes in the Zoological gardens was reduced by the death of Sally and George to a single representative of the order—a gibbon. The stock has within the last day or two been recruited by a pair of oranges, which occupy the cage that used to lodge the celebrated and much lamented Sally. Unfortunately, however, these two little beasts do not appear to possess the same vigor of constitution which Sally enjoyed. One has a distressing cough and the other looks decidedly out of sorts. It is to be feared that they will not long remain with us.

The anthropoid apes, which are always among the most interesting exhibits, are unfortunately the most difficult of all animals to keep healthy during captivity. There are not many among the large number which the Zoological society have acquired during the last few years that attained a respectable age. Even Sally was only 10 or 11 years old, and it is probable that all the larger anthropoids live about as long as we do in a wild state.—London Daily News.

Died From Pressure of Money.

Of misers who rolled in their gold I have often heard, but it is surely a new experience for one to die from the pressure of his accumulated specie. A poor looking, third class passenger in the train from Paris to Turin was a week ago taken seriously ill as the latter place was neared. He was still alive when Turin station was reached, and was carried off at once to a sofa in the waiting room, where he soon died. On examination it was found he was wearing a belt containing no less than 80,000 francs in gold, and death had evidently been caused by the pressure of this belt with its precious contents. The dead man had also rouleaux of gold under his armpits, though he was dressed in rags, and so far no clue to his identity has been discovered.—London Figure.

A Remarkable Indiana Ghost.

The little town of Nappaner, Ind., is all torn up over a ghost which it is said has been appearing for the last two months. Those who have seen it report that it has been playing all sorts of pranks unseemly in a ghost. Among other things reported is that it approached a boy, took a saw from his hands and disappeared. Also that it put three sets of harness on a horse and tied these horses together by their tails, also that it stacked all the farm implements in a pile in a barn and scattered a lot of meat about a yard. The ghost is said to have the form of a man and vanishes and reappears with startling and uncomfortable frequency.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Dog That Steals.

A thief which has been robbing a Salem (Mass.) firm of groceries proves to be a dog. For several weeks the firm has been missing small articles from the store, and a few days ago they noticed that the dog after loitering around outside for awhile entered, picked up an orange and left. In a few minutes he returned and stole an ear of corn. The dog went directly to the home of a family in the neighborhood and delivered the stolen articles. Not a thing was bruised. The dog is a setter. It is supposed it has been trained to steal. A warrant for the arrest of the animal has not yet been sworn out.—Boston Letter.

A Rival of Mr. Finnegun.

A resident of Calais, who had been seriously ill for ten days, supposed he was dying Sunday morning, soon after midnight, and sent a messenger for his doctor, who two hours later had not appeared. The patient told his wife he could not wait longer as he was in so much pain, so he arose, dressed and went for the doctor himself. This is a sequel to the historical exploit of Mr. Tim Finnegan at his own wake.—Kennebec Journal.

Fewer Traveling Men.

It is claimed that all the big jobbing houses of the Missouri valley will reduce the number of traveling men in their employ and require the men retained to cover more territory. An association to which the houses all belong will regulate the matter, and regulate the number of men which a house may keep on the road.—Atchison Globe.

The Progress of Volapuk.

It is a very interesting fact that the world language, Volapuk, is not only coming to be spoken conversationally by its enthusiastic votaries, but is to be made a medium of interlingual communication at the World's Columbian fair. A complete record of progress made in spreading Volapuk since that delightful national convention of its votaries was held in Boston, considerably more than a year ago, would astonish all but the few who keep closest watch on the movement. A significant circumstance is that recently the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the People's church, Boston, formally adopted Volapuk as a study for that organization, and a class of forty members (expected to double shortly) was formed, to meet each Monday evening in the church's reading room for instruction.

Other noteworthy instances are as follows: The people of Newton, quite at their own request, are to have a lecture on Volapuk under the auspices of a ladies' association there. Salem and Gloucester are to have lectures in January, and the interest all over the country is similarly manifested. Newspaper lessons, published simultaneously all over the maritime provinces, Canada and the United States, have been given weekly since Oct. 10. The students write out the exercises of the lessons and send them to convenient points, as designated, for annotation, and immense numbers of young and old of both sexes are following the lessons.—Boston Advertiser.

Area of the Canadian Dominion.

In the last issue of the Statistical Year Book of Canada, compiled by Mr. Sydney C. D. Roper of the statistics branch of the department of agriculture, we find that the total area of the dominion is computed to be 3,573,383 square miles. In this estimate 144,733 square miles are assigned to water and 3,428,650 to land surface. The table which yields this total is said to be an entirely new one, having been specially prepared at the request of the compiler of the Year Book by the Topographical Survey branch of the department of the interior.

"The measures have all," we are told, "been made anew and checked, and may be depended on, in so far as warranted by the present geographical knowledge of the country. No change will be made in these figures unless based upon new information." As this is a question on which there has been a good deal of discussion and much difference of opinion, it is satisfactory to receive this assurance from what we may regard as the highest official and professional authority.—Montreal Gazette.

THE CHILEAN QUESTION.

President Harrison yesterday transmitted to the Senate and House of Representatives the message on the Chilean question which he has been preparing for some time past. It contains no information which has not heretofore been made public. It recites the fact that the United States Legation at Valparaiso, furnished an asylum to refugees of the Balmaceda government, and that while the right to asylum was not denied by the new Chilean government, the Legation was subjected to a system of police espionage, which made it a veritable prison.

The most serious incident, however, in the opinion of the President, is the attack on the sailors of the United States steamer Baltimore, in the streets of Valparaiso, on the 16th of last October. He claims to the belief expressed in his annual message, that our sailors were assaulted, beaten, stabbed and killed, not for anything they had done, but for what the Government of the United States had done, or was charged with having done by its civil and naval officers in the case of the Itata. He quotes the testimony of Captain Schley of the Baltimore in support of this view of the case.

The message states that on the 21st instant, the President, after full consideration of all the evidence, and every suggestion affecting the matter, came to the following conclusions, and to these conclusions he adheres:

First—That the assault is not relieved of the aspect which the early information of the event gave to it, viz: That the attack upon the uniform of the United States navy being its origin and motive in a feeling of hostility to this Government, and not in any act of the sailors or any of them.

Second—That the public authorities of Valparaiso flagrantly failed in their duty to protect our men, and that some of the police and of the Chilean soldiers and sailors were themselves guilty of unprovoked assault upon our sailors before and after arrest. He the President, thinks the preponderance of the evidence and inherent probabilities lead to the conclusion that Higgins was killed by the police or soldiers.

Third—That the President is therefore compelled to bring the case back to the position taken by this Government in the note of Mr. Wheaton of October 23 last, and to ask for a suitable apology and some adequate reparation for the injuries done to this Government.

He has, as yet, received no reply to his note, but in his opinion he ought not to delay longer in bringing the matter to the attention of Congress.

The President makes no recommendation, though he suggests that our sailors should be protected, and his message throws no new light on the subject. What it contains has been known before, and if Chile's reply to the ultimatum is satisfactory, it will probably end the controversy. On the contrary, however, if Chile declines to make reparation the United States will have to refuse to hold diplomatic intercourse with that Republic, or declare against it to enforce its demands.

REMARKS ABOUT CLEVELAND.

The New York World publishes a special from Washington to the effect that President Cleveland decided two weeks ago to announce his position and final withdrawal from the Presidential contest. He informed some of his friends of his determination, and they urged him not to do so, and finally persuaded him to postpone the announcement for a while.

Mr. Cleveland is said to be disappointed and disgusted. He feels that he has not received the consideration from the party leaders to which he thinks he is entitled. Very few prominent Democrats consult him and even when his wishes are well known they have not received the slightest attention. Only a few of those who were members of his Cabinet showed the slightest disposition to protect his interests, and his friends have been outwitted and outvoted everywhere. He realizes the apparent hopelessness of his candidacy without the support of New York and decided to withdraw, though his friends have prevailed upon him not to publicly announce the fact until they had time to concentrate upon some other campaign.

Mr. Cleveland begins to feel that he is being treated by his party leaders very much the same as he treated them. His civil service reform letter to George William Curtis; his tariff-reform message to Congress and his anti-silver letter to Congressmen Warner were penned and published without, so far as can be ascertained, consulting the leaders of his party. He antagonized the silver men of his party by his opposition to free coinage, and arrayed the wool growers against him by his special argument for free wool. The Democrats of every Western State declared for free coinage, and nine-tenths of the Democrats in Congress voted for that measure, yet Mr. Cleveland opposed it and thought that his opposition should be sufficient to get them to change their opinions and take it for granted that he was right and they were wrong.

There is no prominent public man in the country who has less cause for complaint at being slighted by his party than Mr. Cleveland. As President he followed his own inclination, regardless of consequences and assumed to dictate the policy of his party. He would have the Democrats of the West and South, who have been advocating the remonetization of silver, act like Republicans, by pretending to favor free coinage while upholding an Administration that is opposed to it. Such double-dealing on the part of politicians can not deceive the people much longer. Nothing less than a free coinage platform will suit the real silver men. As ex-President Cleveland, unless he experiences a change of opinion, cannot stand on such a platform, it is idle to talk about him for the Presidency.

There are plenty of available Presidential candidates who are better exponents of the Democratic principles of to-day than Grover Cleveland, and if the gentle ex-president desires to withdraw from the field, no obstacles should be placed in his way.

THE MESSAGE.

Optimists of the Press on the Situation.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 25.—The Chronicle will say to-morrow editorially: With the President's summary of the case as contained in the ultimatum of January 21, every self-respecting and patriotic American citizen must agree. If Chili will accede to our just demands, as contained in the ultimatum, well and good, but if she refuses diplomatic intercourse is to be at once suspended and war must inevitably follow, although we all regret its necessity. The option is now with Chili. We have been so patient as to almost become an object of contempt to the great powers of Europe. We have permitted ourselves to be browbeaten and insulted by a nation of pygmies, we have seen our sailors murdered in cold blood and no reparation tendered, and we have heard our President grossly maligned, and smiled, but now an end has come and Chili must make reparation and withdraw the insulting letter she sent. If not the next thing is a declaration of war and then God save the right.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 25.—The Examiner in a long editorial headed "There Will be no War" violently attacks President Harrison's management of the Chilean controversy. It says nothing has occurred since the riot in Valparaiso that will do so much to quiet public feeling as President Harrison's message. The American people would be insane to go to war on such a showing. That message disposes of Mr. Harrison, he proves himself to be a little man, not only incapable of dealing largely with a question so grave as a nation's peace, but also incapable of fairness and truth telling, when truth will benefit the nation with which the United States is in controversy. Mr. Harrison has deliberately concealed from the people of the United States that the chief reason for the exacerbation against Chili is that her Government has expressed no regret for the Valparaiso riot is groundless. The Examiner quotes the communications of Minister Montt of December 11 and January 8th in which Chili deplores the riot and also quotes President Harrison's statement that these expressions are inadequate, and continues, whatever difference of opinion there may be as to the adequacy of Chili's expressions of regret, there can be but one opinion of the conduct of the President of the United States in suppressing them. It closes by saying whatever the grounds for Mr. Egan's complaints of discourtesies to himself may be, the American people will not punish wounds inflicted on his sensibilities by bombarding Chili's ports and slaughtering her people. Had we at Santiago an American, unfettered by a sense of personal injury and solicited only for peace with honor, there would be no more danger of hostilities with Chili than there is of war between the United States and Hawaii.

LONDON, January 25.—The English papers evidently consider Patrick Egan to be the main cause of the trouble between the United States and Chili. The St. James Gazette this afternoon says: Much may be excused in the country which had the envoy of Egan's character thrust upon it, adding that it would be difficult to suppose that either of these high spirited republicans really mean business.

The Globe says: Chilean anxiety to get rid of Egan was justified by American determination to keep him in Chili. It will be a long time before the United States again gives a Fenian a diplomatic post.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: It is difficult to understand why the United States harrasses Chili the way it is doing. The fact that Minister Egan's son is prosecuting Chili for revoking a railway concession throws a flood of light on the subject.

Opinions of Senators and Representatives.

Senator Callom thought the message exceedingly strong, effective, and a clear presentation of the facts. "If those fellows don't back out," said he, "we will clean them out."

Senator Jones (Arkansas) thought the message temperate, cool, dignified and worthy of all consideration.

Senator Stewart thought the message a strong presentation of the case and although every American citizen must deplore war, it seems impossible to avoid it unless Chile gives satisfaction.

Senator Gibson (Maryland) said he would stand by the President in the matter.

Oates (Ala.) was for war. He thought the message well timed and conservative in tone. "In uttering this," said Oates, "in my judgment, I am uttering the sentiments of old Southern rebels, who are prepared to fight like devils for the maintenance of the honor of the country. If Chile does not apologize, we ought to whip hell out of her."

McMillan (Tenn.) said while the message is in a belligerent tone, he thought we should be able to settle the matter without war.

Simpson (Kaz.) thought it ridiculous and a disgrace for this country to go to war on a pretext given in evidence. The message sounded like a special plea to get the Irish vote.

Springer (Ill.) said: "The message seems to be entirely exparte in its statements and does not disclose the case presented by the Chilean government. After all the facts are known the probabilities are that the case will be presented in a different light. In any event the facts are disputed, and while they are in dispute we would not be justified in going to war without further investigation. If the intervention of foreign powers should be invoked, there should be no resort to war until all efforts have been exhausted to secure a peaceful solution."

Brookridge (Ky.) thought the message an able document, an excellent presentation by an admirable lawyer of the case he is prosecuting against an adversary. He hardly thought it a statesmanlike message to a great people, about a question of war.

with a very small country in the throes of civil war. He did not think we ought to have war, but this opinion was provisional. Senator Platt thought the sentiment of the whole country ought to sustain the President in his ultimatum, and give him power to enforce it.

A number of Senators and Representatives declined to speak until they had thoroughly considered the message and accompanying documents. Particularly was this true of most of the members of the Foreign Affairs Committee of both Houses, but Representative McCrory of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said that while he hoped there would be no war yet he was satisfied the House of Representatives would be ready to take such action as will maintain our self-respect and uphold the honor of the flag. Raynor (Md.) also a member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, said the situation was far more serious than had been anticipated, and the United States certainly could not let the matter rest.

Hitt, leader of the Republican minority of the Foreign Affairs Committee, expressed great satisfaction with the message, and said the House should express its concurrence with the President by a resolution, or, if other action was necessary, to supplement the military or naval force that should be taken.

O'Donnell member of the Committee said the message was very patriotic and worthy of the Executive, and will meet with the approval of the American people.

Harmer of Pennsylvania, another member of the committee, said if our country can receive reparation and satisfaction without the awful consequences of war, he would avoid it, but not at a sacrifice of the flag and rights of our citizens.

Chairman Holman of the Appropriations Committee, said the message was a strong one, and the House will stand by the President if the correspondence warrants the statement made. There will be no withholding in any sense of appropriations in case it be necessary.

The Senate.

WASHINGTON, January 25.—There was a very large attendance in the galleries when the Senate assembled. The routine business was proceeded with until the President's message was received. Ordinarily a Presidential communication attracts little attention, but things were different to-day. Occasionally a Senator would be moved by a particularly strong point and would say a word or two of assent to his neighbor. When mention was made of the fact that one sailor had been dragged along the streets of Valparaiso with a lasso around his neck, Senator Vest gave an involuntary utterance to a sound which was easily construed into an expression of sympathy for the sailor and a demonstration of an anti-Chilean nature. At the conclusion of the reading, on motion of Sherman, the message and accompanying documents were ordered printed and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Remarks in eulogy of the late Justice Bradley were made by McPherson and Hoar, and then in token of respect to his memory the Senate adjourned until to-morrow.

To Increase the Navy.

WASHINGTON, January 25.—The bill introduced by Senator Hale to-day is of special interest in view of the Chilean imbroglio. For the purpose of increasing the naval establishments, the bill authorizes the President to have constructed by contract three battle ships of 7,500 to 10,000 tons displacement, two armored coast defense vessels, five gunboats of 700 to 1,200 tons displacement, and eight first class torpedo boats.

Death of a Desperado.

SAN BERNARDINO, January 25.—Antonio Garcia, the desperado shot yesterday morning by police officer West, died last night of his wounds. The inquest held this afternoon completely exonerated the officer. Garcia had a very bad record, being a gambler, horse thief and all-around desperado, and a terror of the neighborhood in which he lived.

PRACTICAL MILK TESTING.

The Agricultural Experiment Station Ready to Give Information.

EDITOR JOURNAL—Dear Sir:—This station is about to make a comparison of the most practical methods of milk testing, in order to give farmers and others in the State, who may wish to test their herds, information as to the most expedient method for their use, the cost of such apparatus as is necessary, and the expense of using the same. This matter of milk testing is of vast importance to the dairy farmer than many of them imagine. Amongst every herd will be found individual animals which are really being kept at a loss to their owner; others that barely pay for their keeping, and still others that are a source of great profit.

It is really money in the pocket of the farmer to sort out these cows of his herd that he is feeding at a loss. The most expeditious way of doing this is to make a thorough test for butter fat of the milk of each cow separately.

In order to get material to work with, and from as many sources as possible, we invite any and all who may own cows and would like to have them tested and at the same time add the station in its work, to send to the station samples of milk which will be tested free of charge and results reported. It is to be distinctly understood that the station reserves the right to publish any and all results, for the public benefit, in the bulletin which will be issued describing the work.

The following are directions for taking milk samples and it is advisable that they be followed as closely as possible so that those sending samples may obtain results showing the exact quality of the milk being given by each particular cow.

In sampling single cows, have a glass fruit can—or other vessel with good, tight cover—for each cow to be tested. As soon as each cow is milked, thoroughly mix the milk by pouring from one pail to another three or four times (the simple process of milking is not sufficient to thoroughly mix the milk) with a small dipper (one-half pint capacity) dip up about a tea-cup full and place in the glass can; this must be done before the milk has time to settle.

Each can should be labeled with the name of cow or numbered so as not to be mixed. At the next milking put another dipperful of the same size into the can in the same manner as before. In this way may be obtained samples representing only one milking or more just as is desired.

When it is desired to test the mixed milk of a whole herd the sample is best taken by having a pail at hand and as each cow is milked mix the milk thoroughly and put a dipperful into the pail. When milking is finished and a dipperful from each cow's milk has been put into the pail mix it thoroughly by pouring from one pail to another and dip out about a pint of it, place it in a can, label it and send to the station.

The quality of milk varies greatly from milking to milking or from day to day. From one day to the next it may vary as much as one-half percent. For this reason we would like samples of single milkings, of two or more combined, and of milk from individual cows and of the mixed milk of herds. Samples of skimmed milk and butter milk are also desired. This work is to be done in the interests of the farmers and we again cordially invite them to co-operate with us in the work which will be of benefit to them and at the same time costs them nothing save the little time and trouble necessary to prepare and send samples. Beginning Tuesday, January 26th, we shall be prepared to receive samples for this particular work for three or four weeks.

Address all samples and send with a full description (stating whether it is the milk from whole herd or from individual cow, whether one or more than one milking, and whether mornings or nights or both) by express or bring to Agricultural Experiment Station, Reno, Washoe county Nevada.

NATHANIEL E. WILSON, Chemist.

MINERS FROZEN.

Two of Them Will Probably Lose Their Feet.

Captain Palmer of Carlin informs the Elko Independent that three miners in Richmond District got out of provisions and started to Carlin without blankets. All of them managed to get to Simons' place, twelve miles north of Carlin, where one of them named George, a man 61 years of age, left for Carlin to get assistance. The snow was deep, and it took him two days and nights to get to Carlin, where he arrived completely worn out. Men and teams were immediately sent out to Simons, where the two men were found badly frozen. It is thought one of the men will lose both feet and the other one foot.

Test Case of the New Fish Law.

Captain Warner yesterday arrived from the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation in answer to a dispatch from Indian Henry, who had been arrested for selling fish, which is now against the law. He was locked up, but at the instance of Captain Warner was released, as the latter promised to produce him when necessary for trial. He will have a hearing this afternoon in the Justice Court. It will be a test case, as this is the first arrest under the new law, and for that reason U. S. District Attorney Whitaker has been sent for to conduct the prosecution.

LEAP YEAR AT WADSWORTH.

The Dance Given by the Young Ladies a Success.

WADSWORTH, January 23, 1922. The leap year dance given by the young ladies of Wadsworth last Friday evening was the event of the season, and the ladies acted very "gentlemanly," so a gentleman will never be hard to find. Owing to the liberality of the ladies, both socially and financially, the dance will be remembered by every one.

Much credit is due the floor director, Miss A. Ede, and her assistants, the Misses O'Hare, Spidel, Donella and L. Evans, also to the Misses Bowers, Dunlop and McNevin for the way they hunted around in forming the quadrilles.

The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity with gay parties of both sexes, who enjoyed themselves from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., and then some of the young ladies objected when their timid companions wanted to be taken home.

Among the dancers could be seen Barney Moran, who is greatly sought after by the ladies since his promotion as train dispatcher. He says the girls are not fly enough for him.

Mr. A. Griswold, the genial young clerk, says Wadsworth is ahead of Omaha about leap year.

George McPherson, our handsome station agent, says he can stand a leap year dance every night in the week. Go it, George, while young. There's no one watching you.

Wm. Mallon expects to have a partner for the next leap year dance.

Mike Donella says the supper served by Mrs. Ed. Fowler was hard to beat and came in good play about midnight.

Every one had a good time and enjoyed the music furnished by the Washburn Orchestra; so now we can only wait and see if the married ladies can beat this one. They say they can. We doubt it, and are willing to wait and see. They will have to get up early and work late to do so.
